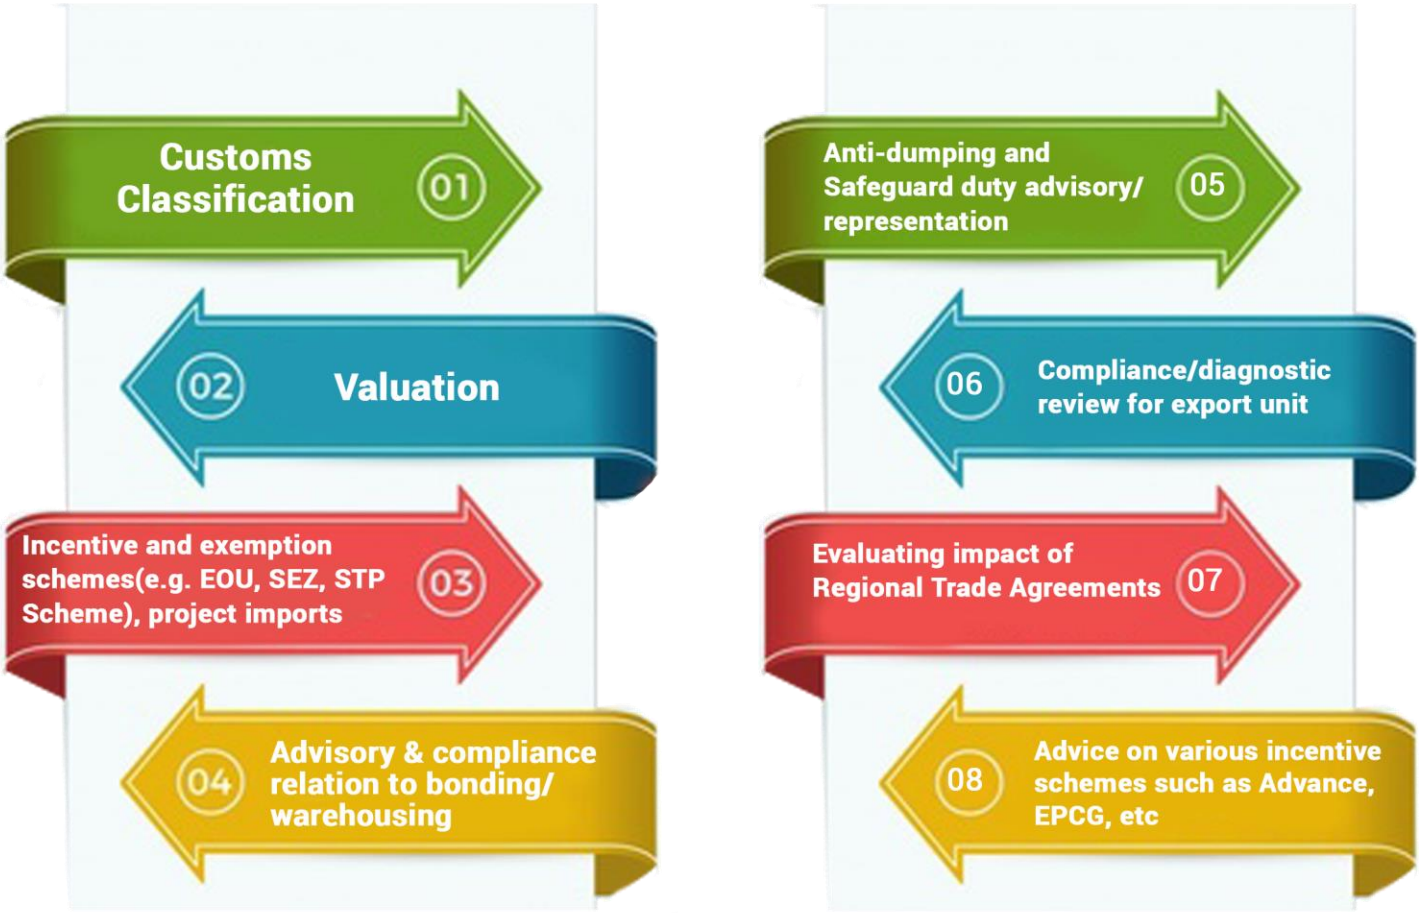
International Transactions

The impact of customs duties is significant on cross-border transactions. The trend today is reducing customs duties in accordance with WTO commitments. However, the nature and form of tariff and non-tariff barriers is changing rapidly. Regional Trade agreements are increasingly being entered into India.

Upfront identification of the impact of customs duties as well as tariff and non-tariff barriers and regulatory approvals that may be required is critical if imports are an important part of your supply chain. We assist our clients in addressing issues covering all these areas in a holistic manner, such that there are no hidden costs or surprises. We not only identify planning opportunities, but also help clients assess and mitigate risks that may pose a business challenge.



Procurement, manufacturing and distribution

In India, the indirect taxes applicable to the procurement, manufacturing and distribution functions are complex since they involve an inter-play of taxes that apply at different stages/transactions and at different levels i.e. central, state and local.

A number of indirect taxes typically apply to transactions in the supply chain, including, Excise duty, Sales tax (including works contract tax and lease tax), Service tax and VAT.

We provide a range of services to our clients whose businesses involve procurement, manufacturing and /or distribution. These include:

01 Assistance in establishing units, obtaining necessary Government approvals

02 Classification, valuation and dutiability

03 Contract negotiation and structuring

04 Identification of benefits and concessions

05 Developing operating structures for tax optimisation

06 National tax administration

07 Due diligence and diagnostic review

08 Cross credit review under integrated credit regime

09 GST impact analysis and pricing state

Special Economic Zones or SEZs are being created to provide an internationally competitive environment for export promotion and encouraging investment. SEZs have been provided various tax and duty exemptions and concessions. The importance of SEZs as a business model is evidenced by the fact that numerous business houses (both Indian and foreign) are setting up large SEZs in various parts of the country.

Our offerings with respect to the SEZ scheme are:

01 Advisory assistance, identification of benefits and exemptions under the SEZ scheme

02 Assistance in development of/setting up of SEZs/units in SEZs

03 Assistance in liaison/representation before Central/State Government officials for obtaining requisite approvals.

Engineering Procurement and Construction Contracts

An Engineering procurement and Construction (EPC) contract in India is significantly impacted by indirect taxes. Customs duties, Sales tax/VAT including Works contract tax, Service tax, Research & Development cess, Octroi/Entry tax and Cenvat (Excise Duty) are all likely to impact these projects.

We help clients in managing and structuring their EPC contracts efficiently. The specific areas of assistance are enumerated below:

01 Assistance in structuring tax efficient bid/notice inviting tender

02 Review/restructuring of contracts for tax efficiency

03 Advisory assistance pertaining to optimizing the impact on indirect taxes

04 Assistance in obtaining registrations and approvals

05 Comprehensive range of compliance services, including registrations and management of all tax related obligations

06 Identification of benefits and exemptions

07 Assistance in proceedings and litigation support
